The title of your book is by far the most important book marketing decision you'll make. Here are some ideas on how to write a good title that sells. Tucker has sold over 5 million books as a 4x NYT Bestselling Author and is the co-founder of Scribe. Don't Have Time Right Now? Download a PDF. Shockingly, there's little useful guidance out there about book titling. What advice exists is usually of little help: Trite (“Go with your gut!”) In case of a forgotten title or author, you have to remember anything you can use from the book. It could be the name of a character, a line of dialog, or even basic plot points. The more specific the phrase, the better the result. All rules of a normal search apply (for instance, for exact searches put it in quotes). Google auto-suggestions will also tell you if you are on the right track.
