HYPOTHESIS

‘R.K. Narayan’s novels echo the existential dilemmas of human condition. He is an existentialist. His writings reflect the existential humanistic paradigm of psychology as well as the philosophy.

Through the literary archives, like the novels chosen for study, I intent to throw light on the existential conditions of man and how to come out of it and make life meaningful and worth living.

It is rightly said by Victor Frankl, “The meaning of life always changes but it never cease to be.” And his belief that even under the most difficult circumstances, to cope with the uncertainties in life, choice and action of each individual has a significant impact in their life and thereby in the society.
